

LORDENSHAWS AND THE COQUET VALLEY

(Use the controls to navigate through the panorama)

The Simonside Hills loom over the upper Coquet valley looking north. The magical and haunted Whitton Dene is in the middleground. The path off to the left is to the main carved rock outcrop.

The hillfort is one of the most accessible sites of prehistoric rock carving in the north.

It features in my ongoing chorography of the English/Scottish borders.